HAZARDOUS INTERSECTION. As motorists travel north on Franklin Avenue and approach Garfield Avenue they may or may not see an important traffic control, a STOP sign. This series of photos shows the inconspicuous sign as viewed from approximately 175 feet, far left, about 100 feet, center, and from the position where a car would normally stop at the intersection.

The bright red sign is somewhat visible through the tree limbs during daylight hours, but at dusk and later in the evening it becomes almost invisible through the branches. Safety officials are hopeful that east and westbound traffic will not assume the northbound traffic will stop, since the sign is obviously obscured.

Revive home loan bond issue hopes

Granite City is "back on the track" with its low-interest mortgage bond issue and Mayor Paul Schulz hopes to sign the bonds in Washington within two weeks, it was announced Friday.

An assurance given by powerful U.S. House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Al Uhlman to Alton Mayor Paul Lenz that mortgage bond issues approved by cities prior to April 25 will be allowed to proceed was all that was needed for Granite City to revive its plans and return to work on the program, which is almost completed.

The Granite City Council on March 27 approved a $10 million mortgage bond issue to provide home loans for middle-income persons and families.

Lenz said that Uhlman, whose bill to tax all mortgage bonds made them temporarily unsalable, assured him verbally that the transitional rule now being studied by the Ways and Means Committee will be passed when the committee reconvenes Monday, June 18.

The transitional rule will allow all cities which had bond programs approved prior to when Uhlman's bill was introduced to continue with their programs. Uhlman's bill to tax the bonds was introduced April 25, with the support of the Carter Administration.

Mayor Lenz said the underwriters hired by the city to handle the bond sale have assured him they are ready to buy the whole bond issue.

Alton already has an interest-free mortgage bond program in operation, but plans to issue another $15 million in bonds to expand the program.

Granite City plans to sell $10 million in tax-free mortgage bonds which would be used by mortgage companies to back home loans issued for about 8.25 to 8.5 percent, depending on the bond market when the bonds are sold.

Average home loans currently require about 10 percent interest. Families with incomes up to about $40,000 per year could qualify for low-interest home mortgages.

Of the $10 million in bonds sold, about $8.5 million would be available for home mortgages in the city. Several financial institutions and companies have indicated they will act as brokers for the home mortgages.

Continental Bank in Chicago is designated as the holding bank for the money and will process applications taken by the local brokers.

When the U.S. House Ways and Means Committee reconvenes June 18, several proposals for limiting the use of tax-free mortgage bonds are to be considered, including Uhlman's proposal to tax the bonds.

However, a proposal to give a tax credit to middle-income families obtaining conventional financing for homes also has considerable support.

Police proud of new building

By BILL WINTER

Editor

"Don't call it a jail." That is the sentiment of Granite City police, whose new departmental base of operations is known as the "Police Building." From patrolman to chief, all are walking tall and voicing pride in the new structure, which they helped design and which, as they point out, does not look like a jail. It is at 2330 Madison Ave.

Built with the aid of Economic Development Administration and Federal Revenue Sharing funds under the leadership of Mayor Paul Schulz and the City Council, the police building will be the scene of ribbon-cutting ceremonies at 1 p.m. Saturday. Public tours of the building will then be held until 4 p.m. that day.

Participants in the program will include Congressman Melvin Price, who will deliver an address; former Alderman Clyde W. Boyd, a United Steelworkers representative, who will present the dedication talk; and State Rep. Sam Wolf, who will give the response.

Chief of Police Ronald Veizer will serve as master-of-ceremonies, and the welcome and introduction of guests will be by Mayor Schulz.

Prayers will be given by the Rev. James P. Hill, pastor of Sacred Heart Catholic Church and president of the Priests' Senate of the Springfield Diocese, and the Rev. David Fielding, pastor of Hope Lutheran Church and president of the Quad-Cities Ministerial Association.

Honor America

June 14 - July 4

Flag Day, June 14, begins a significant 21-day period extending through the Fourth of July which presents an opportunity for every American to assess what he or she is doing to help this country maintain its position as leader of the free world.

This period, the basic purpose of which is to Honor America, was established by a joint resolution of the Congress and signed into law by the President in June 1975.

One of the objectives of the 1979 Honor America campaign is to combat the idea that most Americans don't want to "get involved" in public affairs. Perhaps, like many similar notions, there is a small grain of truth here, wrapped in a large bundle of misunderstanding.

The Founding Fathers, in their public endeavors, pledged "Our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor." Rarely is an American called upon today to display such fortitude.

But millions of responsible Americans are getting involved in volunteer projects which enrich their lives and the lives of others, and in so doing enhance the quality of national life. It is not difficult to find illustrations. In Texas last summer, 65 aging and ailing persons enjoyed a refreshing vacation at a no-cost state camp near Dallas. Young probationers in Illinois won a chance for a fresh start through a non-profit work program functioning in Peoria. Virginia found an array of productive tasks for a Young Adult Conservation Corps which cleared public lands, trimmed foliage impeding parkway vistas and painted schools and fire houses.

On a larger scale, Baltimore rehabilitated portions of its slum areas and erected private homes to upgrade the neighborhoods. The St. Johns River, which winds through half the length of Florida, has been rescued from its status as a huge dumping ground. The cleanup, undertaken by the city of Jacksonville with the cooperation of private industry, has already cost millions and may cost billions, but it has made a splendid contribution to the Florida environment.

These developments underscore the point that there exists in the United States a massive reservoir of generosity, self-sacrifice and willing effort. Moreover, they reflect a sense of responsibility toward meeting the country's needs, as well as a disposition to roll up one's sleeves and tackle whatever task that seems urgent.

How about you, Ms. and Mr. Citizen? If you hear an appeal to help establish a neighborhood playground, support a scholarship fund, assist a needy family or some similar project, don't automatically turn a deaf ear. In the 21-day period extending to the Fourth of July (patterned after the 21-gun salute to a head of state) there will be ample opportunity to lend a hand. Here are a few suggestions:

Encourage regular daily display of the American flag—flags symbolize achievements, traditions and ideals; suggest that shopping centers sponsor historic displays and appropriate ceremonial programs; organize folk festivals with traditional food, dances, costumes and music. This list barely skims the surface.

Through such positive actions you'll be demonstrating how life works in a democracy and that the people are the nation. Then celebrate America's birthday on July 4th with a feeling of accomplishment.

Plan Flag Day ceremonies here

Soldiers of local Army commands and subordinate activities will participate in the commemoration of three patriotic anniversaries June 14 during flag ceremonies.

The U.S. Army Troop Support and Aviation Material Readiness Command, located at 4300 Goodfellow Boulevard, and the St. Louis Area Support Center, at the Granite City Army Installation, will raise 20x38 foot American garrison flags at 7:30 a.m.

Thursday, with retreat ceremonies scheduled for 4:30 p.m.

These events will commemorate the Army's birthday, Congressional acceptance of the American flag, and the establishment of the Army flag.

On June 14, 1775, the Continental Congress voted to establish 10 companies of riflemen, thereby creating the nation's first Army to prepare for the impending war for independence from England.

Two years later, Congress voted to accept the first official flag of the United States.

The official Army flag was established by executive order of the president on June 12, 1866. The Army flag is adorned with 176 streamers, each of which represents a military campaign in which the Army has participated.

Price will be drive speaker

Second-ranking U.S. congressman in seniority, Melvin Price of this district will be guest speaker for the 1979 Tri-Cities Area United Way campaign kickoff meeting Sept. 14 at the Granite City Township Building auditorium, General Campaign Chairman George J. Knecht announced today.

Confirming the visit, Cong. Price wrote, "It will be my pleasure to take part in your campaign in this way."

"The United Way campaign team, forming for our 1979 effort under George Knecht's leadership and committed to excellence, will be further strengthened by the involvement of Cong. Price, TCACUW President Paul J. Costello said about the announcement.

Madison Christmas decorations

The Madison Business Association (MBA) received a preview of "Christmas in Madison" as Mayor Mike Sasyk had on display the new Christmas decorations that will adorn the town.

At the Tuesday MBA meeting the mayor explained the lighted trees and wreaths would cost about $10,000.

The decorations are being paid for through a joint effort by various business, civic, service, religious, political and fraternal organizations. Individual contributions are also welcome to help pay for the decorations, the mayor said.

The mayor further explained the cable television proposal and how the businesses could hook up the burglar and other safety alarms with the cable television cheaper than with the telephone company, which the mayor says is planning on increasing their rates.

Plans were discussed for the annual Madison Alpine days, scheduled Friday and Saturday, July 13 and 14.

The building was designed by M & W Architects & Engineers and the general contractor was M.H. Wolfe & Co. But the department members feel they had a major part in the project, because their ideas on what was needed have been incorporated into the design.

Cost-cutting eliminated an elevator and a few other parts of the original plan, but the building is spacious, modern and attractive.

Both for security purposes and efficiency, the patrol, investigative and administrative areas have been separated and there are different entrances for the public, the police and the prisoners. Up to 12 persons can be held in custody at one time.

Voice commands from officers over an unobtrusive but ever-present sound system permit locked doors to be opened from the radio and control room, which itself is secure from attacks of all kinds.

Those who are arrested are brought inside the building, with an outer door closed behind them and officers' weapons put out of reach before the suspects are removed from the patrol cars.

Juveniles in custody are kept entirely separate from the men's and women's jail sections, and any of the three categories of prisoners can be supervised and moved about without contact with other inmates or the outside world.

Judicial quarters permit preliminary court proceedings to be carried out within the police building. Soundly built and highly secured, the structure also includes offices and a command center for civil defense activities, who will be able to guide emergency and disaster work from within a weather- and attack-proof headquarters.

Crime laboratory and photographic darkroom facilities, evidence rooms, a public meeting room, officer lounge and shower areas, a potential physical fitness section — the list is almost endless.

While there is no waste space, the two-level floorplan seems to create more "elbow room" than appears possible from an exterior view of the building.

Nearly all of it will be on view for public inspection Saturday afternoon, a grand "grand opening" day for an impressive new municipal facility.

In announcing plans for the dedication ceremony, Mayor Schuler noted that the new building cost $930,000.

It was financed with an Economic Development Administration grant of $744,000 and use of $186,000 in federal revenue sharing funds.

"As a result, this much-needed facility has built at no cost to the local taxpayers, other than their federal taxes," the mayor commented.

It contains 13,000 square feet of space in two levels. Constructed of concrete block and brick, the exterior of the building is nearly devoid of glass.

"This provides additional measures of security, improves emergency evacuation, and allows efficient maintenance operation of the facility," Mayor Schuler said.

"Coupled with on-site emergency generating capability, the entire structure is protected by a specialized air filtration system to filter the air in the event of a contaminated air supply. Off-street parking is provided for police vehicles at the rear of the building, and a public parking lot is located behind the adjacent main fire station, at 23rd and Iowa streets.

"In addition to housing all departments of the city police force, specially designed detention cells have been installed to accommodate adult males, adult females and juveniles in segregated areas.

"Separate operational offices and command areas are provided for the Granite City Emergency Operations Center in the lower level of the building.

"This modern, functional building will serve not only as a civic asset for the local law enforcement team, but also as a reflection of the concerned effort on the part of the local city administration to not only improve local economic conditions through an aggressive industrial expansion program but to provide public services for residents of Granite City at the lowest possible cost."

"George Knoech's efforts and the continued strengthening of our United Way budget review process, under the leadership of Paul Sodko, give this community an opportunity to reach for even higher levels of service to people through private non-profit United Way community agencies and services," he added.

Cong. Price, first elected on Nov. 7, 1944, while serving in the U.S. Army as an enlisted man, has served in congress continuously thereafter.

For many years, he has been active in support of a broad range of domestic legislation dealing with economic security and development, energy reserves, food control, labor and social security, urban affairs, education, health and tax reform.

Price started his Armed Services Committee career on the old House Military Affairs Committee following his first election. On election evening, he was performing "kitchen police" duty as a corporal in the Army Quartermaster Corps at Camp Lee, Va. He heard the news while unloading a truck of apples.

Price was promoted to sergeant and discharged, and took his seat in the House on Jan. 3, 1945.

With the 1946 Legislative Reorganization Act, Rep. Price became a member of the present House Armed Services Committee, on which has served continuously and is now chairman of the committee.

He is chairman of the Subcommittee on Procurement and Military Nuclear Systems, which deals with military uses of atomic energy.

The local congressman was active in support and advocacy of the first nuclear-powered submarine, and a leader in the fight for nuclear-powered aircraft, the inter-continental ballistic missile and the distant early warning system for the protection of the U.S.

His warnings against weakening the nation's military position, while the world continues to remain in danger of war began as far back as 1945, soon after the shooting in World War II stopped.

Rep. Price has also been active in the field of international relations as it relates to America's defense posture. He has been particularly concerned with the adequacy of the nuclear safeguard program in North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries and the overall U.S. nuclear defense strategy.

During his service on the Armed Services Committee, Price has championed the causes of the individual serviceman, including reforming the military code of justice, providing legal defense services during overseas service, and expanding health care and educational benefits, particularly for widows of servicemen killed in the line of duty.

He also has favored the strengthening of re-employment rights for servicemen, increasing incentive programs such as flight pay for highly skilled personnel, and improving the utilization and training of reserve forces.

$2,300 burglary at Houser

Burglars stole an estimated $2,300 in cash and guns during a burglary at Houser Auto Supply, 1749 Madison Ave., between 7:30 p.m. Saturday and 9:45 a.m. Sunday.

A garage door was forced open to gain entry. The safe then was pried open and taken from the safe were a metal box containing about $1,200, a white canvas bag containing about $500, three bank bags for First Granite City National Bank containing about $300 and at least one charge receipt.

Fifty dollars in nickels and dimes were removed from cash drawers and two loaded guns, a .357 magnum handgun and a 12-gauge shotgun, were stolen from the counter. The guns belong to a Houser employee, police were told.

$3 million to Green

James C. Green, developer of apartment and commercial complexes in

Pontoon Beach, Bethalto, Wood River, Springfield and other cities, has been awarded $3 million by a jury in Madison County Circuit Court.

Defendants in the lawsuit were Illini Federal Savings and Loan Assn., FSL Realty Co. and R.W. McGovern, a vice-president of Illini Federal.

During a complex five-week trial, during which more than 200 exhibits were offered for evidence, Green's financial dealings with FSL Realty and Illini were studied at length.

Attorney Rex Carr, who represented Green, contended that a shutting off of credit to Green by the defendants and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation had resulted in Green being unable to complete numerous properties under construction and resulted in Green's financial downfall.

Carr also contended a court order prohibiting Green from leaving the state with rent proceeds from apartments was illegal and resulted in an improper arrest of Green, who spent one night in jail.

The jury Friday awarded $3 million in actual damages, but declined to approve punitive damages. The case was presented before Circuit Judge Victor J. Mosele.

The case first was filed April 1, 1974. Several other lawsuits involving Green's financial dealings are to be heard, now that the initial suit has been disposed of.

Man flees jail, recaptured

A 25-year-old Madison man was arrested late

Thursday night and charged with aggravated battery, and later with escape, as the result of an incident in which he allegedly fled from the Madison city jail while being booked on the battery charge.

Police said they arrested Rickie Teller, 1801 Rhodes St., Madison, at 11:15 p.m. Thursday after he allegedly became unruly and abusive, and had to use force to place him in a squad car. Police said they had been seeking Teller to question him in a case under investigation and had learned he was at a Madison tavern.

As officers approached the tavern, they saw Teller get into a truck with another man. The truck was stopped at Madison Avenue and 12th

Street and Teller was asked to accompany the officers to the police station, authorities said.

After reaching the police station, Teller was placed in a booking room. When an officer went into the radio room to get a form, Teller allegedly ran out the front door.

Madison officers were joined by Venice police in a search for the man and authorities said he later was found in his back yard, the charge of escape was then filed.

The aggravated battery allegation was based on a charge that while wrestling with officers he struck one of them.

Lead poisoning screenings

By VALERIE EVENDEN

Families living in homes built before 1955 which may have chipping paint or broken plaster inside or outside the dwelling are being urged to have their children tested for possible lead poisoning.

Last fall, 18 positive cases were detected from a total of 254 children screened here. A mobile testing center will be visiting the Granite City, Madison, Venice, Pontoon Beach and Mitchell areas next week and parents are requested to note the dates in their specific community.

The screening van will visit Madison and Venice on Monday and Tuesday, June 18 and June 19; Granite City on Wednesday, June 20, Thursday, June 21, and Friday, June 22; and Pontoon Beach and Mitchell on Saturday, June 23.

The lead poisoning screening program specifically is aimed at children 9 months through 6 years.

Even though a child may seem healthy, lead may be presenting a hidden danger which can only be detected by tests.

In most cases, symptoms of the problem don't appear until it is almost too late and damage already has occurred.

Lead poisoning results from excessive amounts of lead building up in the body that can cause permanent damage to the kidneys and the central nervous system, leading to learning disabilities, mental retardation, blindness and in its advanced stages—convulsions, coma and sometimes death.

Federal government sources estimate there are at least 600,000 potential cases each year and statistical evidence shows that most lead poisoning victims are very young children, those between 9 months and 4 years of age.

From a total of 254 youngsters tested in Granite City, Venice and Madison last year, 18 were positively identified as having quantities of lead present in the blood.

Nine of the 18 positives were between the ages of 12 months and 2 years.

The 1978 lead screening program was the first held in the Quad-Cities and only a small fraction of the children in the most vulnerable age level was tested.

The screening program is sponsored by the Illinois Association for Retarded Citizens, with the cooperation of many local organizations.

At an orientation meeting held last week at the Madison County Urban League Office, 500 Madison Ave., Madison, representatives from several community groups were present.

Chief spokesmen for the IARC were Mrs. Mary Etta Lane and Mrs. Francine McGuire from Chicago.

Attending were Mrs. Barbara Madison of the Urban League staff who is heading the Venice-Madison screening project; Gary Osburn of the Madison County Association for Retarded Citizens; T. A. Feeler, Tri-Cities Council 1008, Knights of Columbus, J. C. Harrell, president, and George Harper and Sylvester Silas, Venice Jaycees; Caldonia Shands,

A VOLUNTEER HELPER, masquerading as a happy clown, carries a willing youngster to the screening van where a blood sample from a tiny prick on the finger can determine if she has symptoms of lead poisoning. Among 254 children between 9 months and 6 years tested here last fall, 18 had elevated lead levels in their blood. The well-equipped van, owned by the Illinois Association for Retarded Citizens through donations from the Illinois Knights of Columbus, will return to the Quad-Cities next week.

Tri-City Area Association for the Retarded, Anna Claggett, a registered laboratory technician from Barnes Hospital, a volunteer who worked in the screening van last year; and Bill Smithson, Wilson School PTA president, also a volunteer worker.

The Illinois Knights of Columbus through the efforts of local councils, including Tri-Cities Council 1008, donated the specially equipped screening van, it was noted.

The meeting here focused on the problem of recruiting sufficient volunteers who aid the screening drive.

Immediately after the session at the Urban League office, the IARC officers attended a meeting of the Granite City Jaycees at the Jaycee Clubhouse on Poplar Street to explain the program.

The Granite City Jaycees agreed to provide volunteers and also offered a monetary donation to help pay for tests given the children after being tested.

The IARC spokesmen stressed that lead poisoning is not an inner city, racial or poverty problem.

It strikes rich and poor, rural, urban and suburban and white and black children alike.

Three primary groups are considered the most likely risks, but these children are not the only ones who could be affected, the IARC quickly points out.

Children under 6 years old, especially if they live in older, deteriorating houses. Adults working in occupations where lead is produced and especially their children.

Homeowners renovating houses originally built before 1960.

Fifteen of 27 children of employees at a lead storage battery plant in Vermont were found to have elevated lead levels during a screening program in September 1976.

Household dust, contaminated with lead carried home on the workers' clothing, was the apparent source of exposure, the researchers discovered.

All children in the 9 months through 6 years age level whose fathers work in lead producing plants or with lead based paint should be screened, the IARC spokesmen stressed.

It takes only a few minutes to have a youngster tested in the free program.

It involves a simple "prick" of the finger, with the sample placed in a centrifuge. In most cases, the test results will be available within a few seconds.

Should the level prove higher than is normal, an additional sample is taken and this is sent to the Department of Health laboratory in Springfield.

Parents are then notified to contact their personal physician.

Early signs of lead poisoning are difficult to spot and elevated lead levels may produce no noticeable symptoms.

If symptoms are present, even physicians may easily mistake them for early symptoms of other conditions.

Parents may notice their child is irritable, not alert, loses his or her appetite, loses coordination and in the later stages of the disease experiences vomiting, drowsiness, extreme lethargy and violent seizures.

Medication and treatment are available, but the key is to identify lead poisoning cases in the earliest possible stages.

Volunteers wishing to help in the program are asked to contact Mrs. Shands at 931-0993, or Mrs. Madison at the Urban League Office in Madison.

Smithson said volunteers will be asked to canvass neighborhoods advising parents of the screening project and give parents information and a registration form.

Parents may sign the registration form in advance in the event they are not at

CIRCLE DRIVE FIRE

Venice proposes $238,000 bond sale

A resolution declaring its intention to issue $238,000 in bonds to establish a working cash fund was adopted by the Venice School Board last week.

Although selling the bonds is not always guaranteed, Supt. of Schools Robert N. Vickers said there does seem to be some interest in their purchase.

The bonds will be available to be offered if no objection to the proposed issuance is filed by Venice residents. In that case the matter must be referred to district voters for approval, the resolution explains.

The Venice Board of Education initiated the action upon the advice of the Illinois School Consultants, a consulting firm that is assisting the district in efforts to relieve its serious financial crisis.

Through the proposal, it would be possible to issue teachers' orders with a designated bank up to an agreed total amount.

probably $200,000, with the bank accumulating the orders.

At that point, the district would then sell its bonds to meet the indebtedness, it was explained.

Venice-Lincoln Technical Center, the adult vocational school administered by the Venice School District but financed through federal and state resources, also is experiencing a temporary financial crisis.

Duane Rankin, center administrator, said there are not sufficient funds remaining in the Venice-Lincoln account to meet Friday's $11,000 payroll.

A minor problem in reimbursement payments arose two weeks ago, which since has been resolved. Technically, however, has created about a 10-day delay in receiving the payment now due, Rankin told the board.

Should the bank fail to honor an overdraft against the future payment, the board members voted to lend the $11,000 on a short-term basis with interest from the Venice Public Schools funds in order to meet Friday's payroll.

This marks the first occasion reimbursement payments have not been received on time this year, Rankin said.

Seek to trim off third of Ill. House

The Committee for Legislative Reform has announced that it is circulating petitions for a state constitutional amendment which would reduce the size of the Illinois House of Representatives by one-third, with a tax saving estimated at $6 million a year.

Cooperating with the committee are the Coalition for Political Honesty, plus a Peoria group known as Citizens for an Accountable Legislature, the Jacksonville Area Political Action Committee, the American Association of University Women and other citizens and organizations.

"We are all circulating the same form of petition," said Robert W. Bergstrom of Chicago, counsel for the committee, "on which we must get a minimum of 252,000 signatures by May 5, 1980, so that this state constitutional amendment can go on the ballot in the November 1980 general election."

"There is a way for Illinois voters who are unhappy with the cost of government and the burden of taxation to take matters into their own hands."

"The Illinois Constitution of 1970 allows amendments affecting the state legislature to be proposed by the people through petition."

"If enough people sign the petitions for the proposed constitutional amendment and vote for it," Bergstrom said, "the 59 senatorial districts would each continue to elect one senator as they do now. Instead of electing 177 representatives — three from each district — the senatorial districts would each be divided in half to create 118 representative districts, each electing one representative, starting in 1982."

"Under cumulative voting," in Bergstrom's opinion, "Illinois voters virtually never have a choice of two candidates for each office. They are usually limited to choosing among four candidates for the three representative jobs in their district."

"This system," he said, "protects legislators in what is called 'safe seats' where they do not have to care so much about what the people want. It deprives voters of the right to hire and fire legislators according to whether they have or have not faithfully represented the will of the voters."

The system worked so badly in the 1978 election," he added, "that in eight out of the 59 districts the party polling a minority of the votes elected a majority of the representatives, two out of three from that district."

"We ask all Illinoisans who want to help in this petition drive to communicate with our Committee for Legislative Reform at Post Office Box H, Park Forest 60466."

Shooting case to grand jury

Circumstances surrounding the May 26 shooting of Charles Freiner, 23, of 1415 Fourth St., Madison, will be considered later this month by a Madison County grand jury, the county state's attorney's office has decided.

Freiner was shot at a relative's home in the 2200 block of Cleveland Boulevard and is recuperating. The bullet went in Freiner's neck and lodged near the top of his heart. Relatives have contended the man who shot Freiner was acting in self-defense during a disturbance.

A man at the scene gave police a .22 caliber revolver believed used in the shooting. Granite City police detectives presented their evidence to a warrant officer for the state's attorney's office last week and the decision was reached to have a grand jury consider the circumstances.

Final GC school tax is close to estimates

A tax rate of $3.784 per $100 assessed valuation is to be collected for Granite City School District 9, the board of education has been informed by Tully A. Heubner, director of business affairs.

The new rate would generate about $9,342,114 in taxes, if there was 100 percent collection.

The rate is very close to the $3.78 Heubner predicted last September would be necessary to support a requested levy of $9,429,875. At that time, he estimated the 1978 assessed valuation of the district at $250,000,000. The final figure from the county clerk's office was $247,209,556, which is $2,790,442 lower than had been estimated.

That necessitated a slight increase over the estimate in the rate for the bond and interest fund, from 36.7 cents to 37.1 cents, and caused decreases in the estimated tax income to several funds, including the educational fund.

Overall, the district will receive $87,761 less than had been projected. Hardest hit is the educational fund, which is supported by a tax rate of $2.55 per $100 assessed valuation. While it was estimated last September that rate would produce $6,375,000, the latest figures from the county clerk show that the levy is only $6,303,844, a $71,156 drop.

State funding may help reduce the impact of the loss to the educational fund, officials hope.

A tax rate of 37.5 cents will provide $927,036 for the building fund, slightly lower than the $937,500 which had been projected, and the 12-cent rate for the transportation fund will produce $296,651, down from the $300,000 fall estimate.

The final levy also sets 26.3 cents for municipal retirement which is to raise $650,000, as originally estimated, and five-cent levies for the life safety and working cash funds will provide about $123,604 each, rather than the $125,000 each originally projected.

To produce the $917,375 needed for the bond and interest fund, the levy was set at 37.1 cents per $100 assessed valuation, rather than the 36.7 cents in Heubner's September projection.

The tax rate of $3.784 means that the owner of a $30,000 home, assessed at $10,000 (one-third of the market value), will have to pay $378.40 in school taxes this summer.

Heubner noted that the $247,209,556 in assessed valuation in the school district, $75,640,615 is in corporate personal property, excluding capital stock.

Public action group request to canvass in GC denied by council

A request by the Illinois Public Action Council, a citizens' activist group that has spearheaded consumer-interest programs for about three years, for permission to "canvass" and take a poll in this community was turned down by the Granite City Council last week, although the aldermen were informed the organization probably could enforce its wishes through court proceedings.

The vote on a motion to reject the request came after Granite City Clerk Robert Stevens read a letter from the group and said that the letter had been accompanied by a booklet containing information about the IPAC.

In response to a question by Alderman Sam Whitmer of the Second Ward, Mayor Paul Schuler explained the information was received in response to a request made by the council when it received a letter from IPAC earlier this year notifying the city it planned to make a canvass and take a poll in Granite City.

Mayor Schuler asked City Attorney Lance Callis if the city could prohibit the organization from coming into the city for such activities. Callis replied that it could not, as long as it was a legal organization and conducted legal activities.

"I have some questions about this group," Whitmer said. "I don't think the council knows any more about this organization now than it did before. Where does its money go?"

"If you don't want them here, you can make them go to court to get permission," the mayor said.

Alderman Earl Baker of the Sixth Ward made a motion that the request be denied. Alderman Charles Douglas cast the only negative vote.

Enforcement praised for safer roads

During May, the Concentrated Traffic Enforcement Program, a federally-funded program utilizing off-duty state troopers to patrol selected high-accident highways during specific hours and days of high risk, produced a total of 248 enforcement contacts in this district.

Regular patrol by District Eleven personnel from Maryville yielded 5,299 contacts in this district for the month. Uniformed troopers of the District — coupled with motorists' behavior — all contributed toward a safer driving month," State Police Supt. Lynn E. Baird commented.

College trustees' committees named

New committee appointments have been made by Board chairman Robert Dintelmann for the 1979-80 year at Belleville Area College. Jack Becker (Sparta), Curt Eckert (Belleville) and Edward O'Malley (Belleville) will serve on the Finance, Data Processing and Building and Grounds Committees.

Patricia Bartokas (New Athens), Robert Harris (Granite City) and Elizabeth Jenner (Mascoutah) will serve on the Curriculum, Student Services and Advisory Committee panels. Belleville Area College may spend more than $50,000 to renovate the old Pittman school in Cahokia if the Cahokia School Board will agree to a five-year lease on the building, it was noted. BAC began instruction in aviation maintenance and aviation electronics in the old school after fire razed a hangar at Bi-State Airport which had previously housed the program.

Improvements proposed are roof repairs, fencing and an alarm system to improve security, increased lighting and oil and chip driveways and parking areas.

Edward O'Malley, Board member from Belleville, said, "We will not commit ourselves to spend $36,000 until we get a five-year lease on the building."

Funds to make the repairs and improvements will come from the insurance recovered by the college after the disastrous hangar fire.

According to Dr. William R. Keel, BAC president, the Cahokia Board has agreed to lease the school to the college for five years with a 10 percent increase in rent to be levied each year. During the first year the college has used the building, rent has been $300 per month.

New contracts for maintenance, custodial and clerical workers at Belleville Area College were approved by the Board of Trustees at its May meeting. The three-year contracts call for increases of seven percent for each year for maintenance and custodial workers and for increases of 9.5, 8.75 and 8.75 percent for clerical workers for the three years.

These raises are to be forthcoming only to those employees who had been with the college for a full year. Other clerical employees would get a pro-rata portion of the raise.

According to Bruce Wissore, vice-president for executive services, the clerical raises fall within the U.S. President's guidelines since employees making less than $4 per hour are permitted raises of higher than seven percent.

The overall effect of the clerical raises, he pointed out, does not come to the figures cited, since turnover in the clerical positions at the college is high. College administrators hope to reduce attrition somewhat by the increase in clerical pay, he said.

The board approved the leasing of vacant lots at the corner of North Charles and East B streets in Belleville for recreational and parking lot use for senior citizens. The board agreed to lease the property from the Catholic Diocese of Belleville for $1 per year.

The lots are located near the college's facilities at 201 N. Church St. that house Programs and Services for Older Persons, the most extensive senior citizens program operated by any of the nation's 1,200 community colleges.

The college will use the vacant property to create a mini-park with benches and picnic tables, badminton and volleyball courts, and horseshoe pits as well as a parking area. Improvement of the lots will be funded by grants from townships and from St. Clair County.

Either party may dissolve the lease agreement by giving 90-day written notice. However, Dr. Keel said he hopes the diocese will continue the agreement for at least three years.

The DARTS program operated by BAC will be expanded into Stookey Township as a result of a grant approved by the board. The Demand And Response Transportation System, which provides free transportation to senior citizens for medical, grocery and other shopping purposes, has previously operated only in the city of Belleville, which had provided a $25,000 grant for start-up operations last year.

As a result of the college's receiving another van through donations, an ability to expand the service had been made possible if money for insurance, fuel and drivers is available. Stookey Township trustees agreed to fund the program with $10,000 in revenue sharing money.

The City of Belleville has provided $21,835 in additional money to continue the operation of the system in that area. Less funding was necessary this year than last, President Keel explained, because purchase of vans will not be necessary. BAC will continue to provide English language training and cultural socialization for Indochina refugees in the area.

The BAC Board approved a grant for $24,417 to provide such training in the coming year. A previous grant had made classes and cultural activities possible for 56 refugees during the previous year.

Belleville Area College's programs at Menard prison will be somewhat expanded in the next fiscal year. A special horticulture program, a special photo program and a special sign painting program will be started at the Menard Psychiatric Center at a cost of $14,000 out of a total budget of $60,383.

The total program is funded by the state, with no local tax money expended for the courses taught by the college. Several hundred inmates at the correctional facility are enrolled in various courses planned to prepare them for productive employment upon release.

Laclede plant to be divided into 10 areas

Hope for use of the now idle Laclede Steel Co. property in Madison is being voiced by Howard Hoffman and Associates, industrial real estate consultants created by the steel firm this spring to study prospects for utilizing the 400,000 square feet of space.

Five buildings are to be divided into ten units ranging from 6,000 to 83,000 square feet. There are cranes in place. Remodeling costing up to $1 million is planned to create areas for steel and general warehouses, rail car repair facilities and steel fabrication.

Initial leases may be signed this month, with a goal of full occupancy within a year. Hoffman said it is working with Madison and Illinois Business and Economic Development Department officials.

A wide variety of songs will be presented, including folk songs, well-known sacred works, songs from musicals, and "pop" tunes. Some of the numbers to be presented are "The Water Is Wide," "Cyprian In My Soul," "Rainy Days and Mondays," "Tomorrow, Close to You," "The Name of the Game," "How Great Thou Art," "Morning Has Broken," "Sweet Caroline," "I Believe and On Parade."

Solos, duets and small ensembles will highlight the one-hour program. The choruses are under the direction of Mrs. Mary Ann Bright.

Mercer-Thomas cite positive role of funeral

"Basic funeral facts that every family should know" are being presented in talks to area organizations by staff members of the Mercer and Thomas mortuaries this year.

At a club meeting this spring, Edward Beserman and David Partney presented a film and answered questions on the topic.

Beserman commented: "Just as we are brought into this life through the miracle of birth, so must we be aware of the end of life's earthly cycle and prepare ourselves for this inevitability. Most people usually do not like to entertain thoughts of death, avoiding any consideration of their own deaths and the deaths of the ones they love."

"But just as birth is the dawn of man's earthly existence, death is the night that must follow. For everything there is a season... a time to be born and a time to die."

"Today's funeral services have evolved through the years as a result of man's instinctive wish to honor his dead."

"At different periods in history, in different cultures, funeral customs have developed in characteristic ways. But always, the funeral serves many purposes. It symbolizes the beliefs of the society, its hopes, its ideals, its religious concepts."

"Just as there is complexity in life, so are there many dimensions of the modern funeral. It generally involves religious, social, fraternal, civic and military organizations, in addition to being affected by local, state and federal laws and regulations."

"But most importantly, the funeral provides an acceptable means through which the bereaved can find the needed adjustment to a way of life that has been seriously changed."

"In short, acknowledging that a death has occurred and that a life has been lived is important to most people who survive that death. And the funeral is a proper way of doing so.

"All those familiar with the situations which arise when death occurs agree unanimously that whenever foresight has been exercised, the funeral arrangements can be handled with confidence and will become less burdensome."

"It is important that one should know at least the basic facts about funeral service so he or she can be more helpful to other members of his or her family when the need arises."

"When you are the one that your family turns to for help or leadership at such a time, you will want to be as well prepared as possible."

Points discussed in the talks include tasks after a funeral, Social Security and veterans' benefits, advance preparation, and types of caskets and burial vaults.

Suicide-prone persons can be helped to avoid it

DEATH AND DYING — CHALLENGE AND CHANGE XIII: SUICIDE IN SOCIETY

This is the thirteenth in a series of 15 articles exploring "Death and Dying: Challenge and Change." In this article, Edwin S. Shneidman, professor of thanatology at the University of California, Los Angeles, discusses change in attitudes toward suicide from classical times to the present.

This series was written in COURSES BY NEWSPAPER, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Copyright (c) 1978-79 by the Regents of the University of California.

XIII: SUICIDE IN SOCIETY

By EDWIN S. SHNEIDMAN

"Dear Bill: Somewhere in this is the answer. I couldn't find it. Maybe you can."

"It's not your fault. You did your best, but I just can't seem to make a go of it. I specifically request that my body be disposed of by cremation."

"Forget me as soon as possible and try to understand. I'll love you forever — please."

That suicide note, written recently by a 28-year-old woman, leaves us puzzled. It does not tell us what we want to know.

And even when a suicide note gives some specific precipitating reasons — such as ill health or financial loss — that still does not explain why that particular person committed suicide. We all know someone who has suffered similar reverses and is still alive and well.

We legitimately conclude that there must be something more involved than just this "last straw."

What?

Our ability to prevent suicides depends on finding the answer to that question.

The explanations of suicide — self-inflicted, self-intentioned cessation of life — have been debated for centuries, with some blaming the individual, and others blaming society.

The ancient Greeks and Romans apparently cared less about how long one lived than how well one lived, and they did not condemn suicide.

CHANGING VIEWS

However, this view began to change in the Fourth Century when the Christian theologian Saint Augustine declared suicide to be the greatest sin of all because it precluded the possibility of repentance and violated the Sixth Commandment, "Thou shalt not kill." This notion prevailed for hundreds of years, to the present.

The 18th Century French philosopher Jean Jacques Rousseau transferred the focus of sin from the individual, whom he regarded as basically good, to society, which he thought was bad.

Rousseau's contemporary, the Scottish philosopher David Hume, put aside the concept of sin altogether. His famous 1777 essay "On Suicide" was a combination of biological, sociological and psychological factors that produce an inhuman feeling about existence itself.

Many lives can be saved by a variety of skilled professionals — psychologists, social workers, clergy, and physicians — as well as by trained nonprofessionals. This latter group is particularly important in the work of suicide prevention centers, which started about two decades ago and now number over 200 in the United States.

As to how to help a suicidal individual, it is best to look upon any suicidal act, however lethal, as an effort by an individual to stop unbearable anguish or intolerable pain by "doing something."

Knowing this usually guides us as to the most effective way to help. In the same sense, the way to save a person's life is also to "do something" — putting the information that the person is in trouble into the stream of communication, letting others know about it, breaking what could be a fatal secret, offering help, getting loved ones interested and responsive, creating action around the person, indicating concern and, if possible, offering love.

Perhaps we can then ease what Herman Melville, in America's classic "Moby Dick," called the "damp and drizzly November in my soul."

For that is what suicide seems to be: a dreary and dismal wintry storm within the mind, where staying afloat or going under is the vital decision being debated.

The views expressed in COURSES BY NEWSPAPER are those of the authors only and do not necessarily reflect those of the University of California, the funding agency, or the participating newspapers and colleges.

NEXT WEEK: Robert Jay Lifton, Yale University professor of psychiatry, discusses the psychological effects of the possibility of nuclear war.

one serious philosophic problem and that is suicide."

Ludwig Wittgenstein, the Viennese philosopher, also stated that the main ethical issue for humankind is suicide. According to his view, the principal task of a person is to respond appropriately to life's apparent meaninglessness and its apparently absurd quality.

Today, the question is less one of blame or guilt for the victim and more a question of stigma and adjustment for the survivors. We have begun to move out from under the cloud of sin or crime for suicide, but we still live under some cloud of taboo.

AMBIVALENT DIALOGUE

The most important psychological concept in understanding suicide is ambivalence — the simultaneous wish to die and the fantasy for rescue and intervention. The basic drama of suicide is an individual who cuts his throat and cries for help at the same time.

A suicidal individual does not "make up his mind," as the popular notion holds. More accurately, he or she is of more than one mind — there is an active dialogue in the mind, often at cross-purposes.

The grim question, "If an individual wants to commit suicide, why not let him?" is both cruel and psychologically naive.

"If an individual is (ambivalently) suicidal, why not contribute society's energies on the side of life?" is not only a more psychologically sophisticated question but an infinitely more humane one.

In trying to intervene on the side of life, we must first understand some basic facts about suicide. Contrary to popular misconceptions, eight out of every ten people who commit suicide have given prior verbal or behavioral clues of their intention.

Furthermore, the danger of suicide is not past once the suicidal crisis has apparently been resolved.

Most suicides occur within three months following the beginning of an apparent improvement in an individual's behavior.

Suicide is neither the rich man's disease nor the poor man's curse. It is represented proportionately among all levels of society.

Historically, about three times as many men as women have committed suicide, while three times as many women as men have attempted suicide. There is some evidence, however, that these figures have become more equal in the last decade and that more young people are currently committing suicide.

As for the whole, the statistics of suicide have remained rather constant in the last century. An estimated 50,000 people commit suicide in the United States each year. However, all suicide statistics must be carefully scrutinized because of notorious underreporting of suicides and because it is not always clear whether some deaths were the result of accident or suicide or were "subintentioned" (unconsciously hastened) deaths.

SUICIDE PREVENTION

Suicide is best understood not in terms of a simple medical model of a diseased mind, but as a combination of biological, sociological and psychological factors that produce an inhuman feeling about existence itself.

Many lives can be saved by a variety of skilled professionals — psychologists, social workers, clergy, and physicians — as well as by trained nonprofessionals. This latter group is particularly important in the work of suicide prevention centers, which started about two decades ago and now number over 200 in the United States.

Seek firehouse funds

The Eagle Park Action Committee is spearheading a campaign to secure funds to purchase a tract of land and construct a firehouse.

The fund raising drive started last week, according to Ed Salmond, committee chairman, who is a trustee of the newly-created Eagle Park Fire Protection District.

At a meeting in late May, the Madison County Community Development and Citizens committees approved setting aside the sum of $40,000 from 1978-79 budgeted funds to purchase a fire truck and equipment for the new district.

The funds previously were designated for street projects and road improvements in Eagle Park, an unincorporated community south of the city of Madison.

Conditions of the funds being made available after July 1 are dependent on sufficient money being raised by community residents to purchase property and construct a building.

Salmond said more than $10,000 will be needed to obtain the land and meet construction costs.

He said pledges are being sought from residents in the area and adjacent municipalities are being contacted asking for their financial assistance.

In addition, volunteers are selling barbecued meat at a stand near the Moto Station on Highway 203, near the McCambridge Avenue viaduct.

"We hope to reach our goal within 90 days," Salmond stated.

Rochelle Williams, a citizen participation specialist in the Madison County Community Development Office, said the Eagle Park residents have about 12 months to meet the conditions set forth by the governing committees.

When the funds are secured by Eagle Park residents, an amendment must be submitted to the U.S. Housing and Urban Development Agency seeking approval to utilize the $40,000 grant to purchase firefighting equipment rather than use the money for the initially authorized purpose of roadway improvements, Miss Williams said.

One of the big boys

PEORIA — When Granite City North started its 1979 baseball season nearly three months ago, it had a goal in mind — to win the state championship. It's a goal common to most high school athletic teams. But the Steelers went out and did something about it.

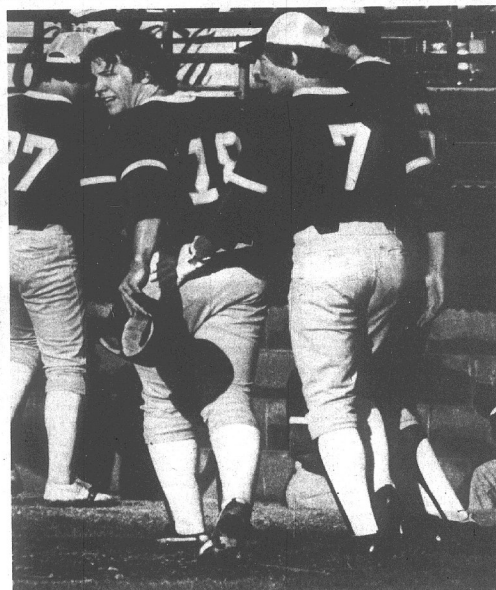

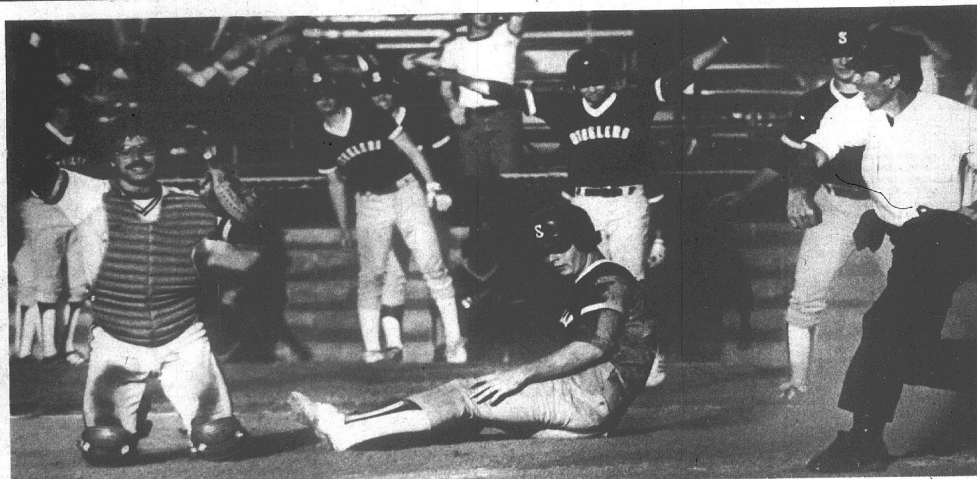

They made it to the state tournament, The "Elite Eight" of baseball. Right up there with the big boys.

Thursday, North played Oak Forest in the quarterfinals of the Class AA (large school) tournament. They lost 5-4. But the Steelers didn't go down without a fight. They fought ace pitcher Tony Bartolomucci of Oak Forest right down to the wire. In fact, it was Oak Forest that had to come from behind to edge the Steelers.

North's players may feel bad right now about not winning the state title. But as time passes, they will realize they were one of only eight baseball teams in the entire state remaining in contention for the state championship.

Right up there with the big boys. Heck, they were ONE OF one of the big boys.

Fields dried out well

PEORIA — The grounds
crews at both Meinen Field
and at Limestone High School here became
"miracle workers" Thursday and got the annual
Illinois Class AA State Baseball Tournament underway — if only a few hours late.

Morning thundershowers that hit Peoria Thursday forced the postponement of the tournament's scheduled morning games to the afternoon. The movement of the afternoon ones from Meinen to Limestone.

Limestone boosters,
custodians and administrators started working on their field at 10 a.m. and had it playable when a second shower hit. The field was worked on again and was ready for play by 4 p.m.

Workers at both fields used a total of 48 bags (25 at Meinen and 23 at Limestone) of Diamond-Dry — an organic product marketed
and distributed by Lincoln (Ill.) College baseball coach Chuck Lindstrom along with hours of work to make the fields playable.

Diamond-Dry is made of the dehydrated center of corn cobs and is capable of absorbing eight to 10 times its weight in water.

In addition, a tarpaulin
was placed over the infield area of Meinen Field.

Inter-City action

MAC splits

By TOM SCHOCKER
For the Press-Record
EAST ALTON
Seemingly dazed from the defeat they took a week ago
the Mitchell Athletic Club plummeted to the cellar of the Inter-City League with a double-header split Sunday at the hands of East Alton, 6-7 and 9-8.

"We're only two-and-six,
which is not a very good start," said Mitchell's player-coach Ken Crawford before the game. "But I'm looking for a good season."
Crawford mentioned that he had some additions to the team which should improve their chances. "I've got a couple of players from the

Granite City North squad
who could really help us in the long run."

Crawford tried to end Mitchell's losing skid as he opened up on the mound. His efforts went down the drain
early as the East Alton bats and a gusty following wind tagged him for an early home run in the first. The wind conditions were to play a big part in the outcome of the game.

Mitchell's Brian Sikes got his team on the scoreboard with a towering last to the opposite field for a home run.
It was quite a feat because the shot went over the left field fence which slopes upward to a peak, 270 feet from home plate. The ball cleared the fence with room to spare.

The second round-tripper
of the game for Mitchell came off the bat of Bob Ricker in the fifth inning. He had not touched the ball previously, striking out both times at the plate.

Crawford's pitching output lasted until the fifth, when East Alton jumped all over him for five runs. He was relieved by Terry Page after one was out. Page finished the ball game but the damage was done.

During games, Crawford explained his disappointing performance. "I think the wind definitely affected my control. I just couldn't find the plate." Crawford added that there were a couple of plays in the outfield that were questionable in which the umpires were not sure on their judgment. He also noted that the wind played tricks with a lot of fly balls causing the outfielders to make costly mistakes.

Mitchell showed its late-pinning muscle in the nightcap to pull out a come-from-behind win. Former Granite City North pitcher Doug Rains opened up the hurling duties and provided

the help Crawford needed as he went the distance in fine fashion.

After giving up seven runs
in the first two innings,
Rains settled down and shut
the East Alton scoring machine off. Alton only scored one run in the fourth.

The Lighter Side

By Cathey Jamison
Press-Record Feature Editor

It only hurts when I laugh

Well, I've had my "vacation" for the year, but I didn't see too much of the outside world. I was too sick.

Spending two weeks in a hospital is a drag no matter how nice the hospital personnel are.

With the kids out-of-town and husband working 14 hours a day, I got lonely for visitors.

I see hundreds of people every day in my work and, for some reason, I expected to see every one of them while I was stuck in the hospital.

I wanted to see every friend I ever had. That's silly, I know, but I have found that most of my fellow patients felt the same way.

There was something about being sick that turned me into a baby, and babies want constant attention.

Oh, I had visitors, but most were on their lunch hours and just ran in and ran out.

Others felt uncomfortable. They would ask how I felt, and then "split."

I had a copy of a medical book with a description of my malady, and I would just hand it to anyone who asked why I was hanging around so long in the hospital bed.

I did have a little fun. One night, I got a craving for pizza. A photographer friend of mine snuck me in a small pepperoni with mushrooms.

There was this one aide, Juanita, who made me laugh every time she came into my room.

Hysterical laughter when one has a broken rib is a little painful, but I didn't mind. She brightened my day.

But she did eat most of the fresh strawberries a friend had brought.

After the first week, I got wheelchair privileges and could leave the floor.

I would go around by the coffee shop and mess around.

But most of my time was spent in my bed, since excessive tiredness was part of my illness.

A friend had brought me a set of nail polishes. I painted my nails a different color every day.

I washed and set my hair every day, so that by 1 p.m. I was ready for visitors.

I waited in vain most days. I was beginning to think nobody cared when the cards and flowers started coming in.

It was then that I realized that most of my friends were as busy as I am, and sitting with me had to be scheduled.

I consoled myself by having fun with the staff and talking on the phone.

As I write this, I am assuming that I will be at my desk again when you read it.

"Vacation" over. Next time I take a "vacation," however, I'm going to Florida.

MAN SURRENDERS
Carl B. Graham, 20, of 4510 Kirkpatrick Homes, surrendered to Granite City police at 5:30 p.m. Monday and was charged with criminal damage to property.

He allegedly was, among a group which used a club to rip a screen and break glass in a door at the apartment of Imogene Jones, 3022 Kirkpatrick Homes, Sunday.

Elkettes plan summer events

In preparation of the summer months, plans for various activities were discussed by the Granite City Elkettes at their meeting Tuesday night.

Mrs. Phyllis Grimm, president, was in charge of the business session, conducted at the Elk's Lodge.

Members agreed to cancel the formal meeting in July, but made tentative plans to attend a performance at the St. Louis Muny Opera in Forest Park during August.

Further information about the trip will be inserted in the club newsletter, Mrs. Grimm said.

Also arranged was a salad potluck dinner on Tuesday, Sept. 4. Members were reminded that dues are payable before Aug. 1.

Mrs. Marge Hülker offered prayer to open the meeting. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Delores Metcalf and Mrs.

Louise Cable, who also directed games. Prizes were awarded to Mesdames Catherine Michel, Evelyn Ferro, Teresa Harding, Dorothy Shepard, Marilyn Duncan, Isabel Anderson, Marian Metz, Mrs. Grimm and Mrs. Hülker.

A special gift was won by Mrs. Mary Sadler.

MICHAEL BRAY STADLER, 11, of 2110 Waterman Ave., chosen by the Illinois Association School Boards to represent Nameoki School in the 1979 Illinois student art competition.

The student artist award was presented to him by Principal Donald Kopp and his fifth grade instructor, Richard Barnett. Michael's entry will be offered to charitable and educational institutions for public display.

Schuler proclaims 21-day period to honor America

Granite City Mayor Paul Schuler has proclaimed June 14 through July 4 as a period for festivities and activities to honor America. The text of his proclamation follows:

"Freedom and union are deeply embedded in the hearts of the American people," President McKinley noted late in the 19th century.

In the ensuing decades, life in the United States has undergone profound changes, but this basic truth remains.

Millions of persons have witnessed the destruction of freedom in other nations. As a consequence, thoughtful Americans cherish the privilege of living in an authentic democracy.

The coming of Flag Day on June 14 offers every citizen an opportunity to express his or her appreciation for our country's liberty and independence.

To focus the attention of the American people on their country's character, heritage and future well-being, the Congress, by joint resolution of June 13, 1975, has set aside the 21 days from Flag Day through Independence Day as a period to honor America.

By displaying the national colors, one displays more than mere bunting. A nation's flag reflects the country's principles, its good name, its history. Like any other symbol, the American flag has special meaning in the mind of those who look at it.

Therefore, by virtue of the powers vested in this office, I do hereby proclaim the 21 day, Flag Day through Independence Day, as a period to honor America with public gatherings and activities at which the people can celebrate and honor their country in an appropriate manner.

New county jail ready by winter?

Concern that the new Madison County Jail, now under construction in Edwardsville, may not be completed by this winter was expressed by some County Board members during a tour of the new building last week.

The building has been under roof for about one month, but interior walls and dividers have not been put up. There is no electrical service yet.

The $4.4 million jail was due for completion by September, but officials feel November is a more likely target date. When the contract was awarded to S.M. Wilson Co. of Granite City as the general contractor in November 1977, it was estimated the construction would take two years.

Later, Wilson said he felt the building could be completed by September, but a 90-day labor strike and two severe winters have made that target date unlikely.

The county is anxious to have the new jail completed since the current century-old jail is too small and is in disrepair. Sheriff Emil Toffant has expressed concern that using the old jail in freezing weather could cause one wall, which is buckling, to collapse.

The current jail was designed to hold 45 to 50 prisoners, but usually holds 70 to 80. Other prisoners are being transferred to the St. Clair and Clinton county jails and the county has to pay for their keep.

The new jail is designed to hold 80 male prisoners and 14 females.

Gross regional product is down

The St. Louis Business Index, published Friday in St. Louis Commerce Magazine, fell more than a point during the first quarter of 1979.

The index, produced by the Regional Commerce and Growth Association, provides a rough indication of changes in the metropolitan region's gross regional product.

Using the year 1970 as a base equaling 100, the index rated the area economy at 115.2 for the first three months of 1979, as compared with 116.5 in the last three months of 1978.

It was the second time since the first quarter of 1975 that the index failed to register an increase. During the first quarter of 1978, there was a .7 decrease to 113.0.

Indicators used in calculating the index are total employment adjusted for productivity changes, retail sales in constant dollars, industrial electric manufacturing earnings in constant dollars, and housing starts.

All the indicators showed reductions in the first quarter of 1979, but housing starts recorded the sharpest decline.

Dessert course for Venice Women

Games and prizes were provided by the hostesses, Mesdames Elsie Canner, Hazel Pozniak, Jane Harris and Lula Kowalski.

Cake and ice cream were served by the committee. Other members in attendance were Mesdames Grace Grimes, Maude Lewis, Sybil Robbs, Rhea Buente, Mamie Ponce, Ruth Canner, Allene Marcus, Hazel Painter, Nora McCoid, Alice Mitchell and Madonna Groshong.

Alderman drafts own bill on GC ordinance procedure

Granite City Alderman Charles Douglas of the First Ward has drafted a proposed ordinance to control council procedure in the enactment of legislative measures and has asked other council members to study his suggested bill in preparation for further discussion on the council floor.

Douglas told council members in a meeting last week that he prepared the ordinance bill after two other ordinances providing such procedural control were voted down by the aldermen in their May 22 meeting.

Douglas has been a strong critic of council operations which permit presentation of ordinances and their enactment in the same meeting, a procedure which he contends often results in the aldermen voting on bills they know nothing about.

He has maintained repeatedly that bills proposed for adoption should go to the council's ordinance committee before being presented on the floor for a vote, and that council members should be made acquainted with the measures before they are required to vote.

Under present procedure, most new ordinances are placed at final passage stage and then given final passage in the same meeting in which they are offered. This is done on a motion to suspend the rules to permit final passage—a motion that takes a two-thirds council vote to be approved.

On the final passage vote, the ordinance may then be enacted by a simple majority vote. There are 14 aldermen on the council. The mayor has the right to vote in case of a tie, or when his vote may decide the outcome of an issue.

In the May 22 council meeting, a majority of aldermen turned down an ordinance that required submission of all proposed ordinances and resolutions to the ordinance committee. That bill was voted down 10 to 3. In a similar action the council, also by a 10 to 3 vote, rejected a measure that would have eliminated the suspension of rules procedure to place an ordinance on final passage in the same meeting.

Although those bills were prepared and submitted to the council at the request of Douglas, the alderman was not present at the May 22 session in which they were defeated.

At last week's meeting, Douglas said he was not present at the May 22 meeting because he was feeling badly and that he had been told by Assistant City Attorney John Papa that the ordinances would not be presented in the council meeting that night.

The alderman remarked last week to City Attorney Lance Callis, with whose law firm Papa is associated, "You must have poor communications in your office. Papa told me when I asked him about the ordinances coming up for consideration in that (May 22) meeting that he had not prepared them yet."

"Papa was the only one I had given any information about the ordinances."

"When I checked up, I learned they had been prepared by you (Callis). Did you prepare those bills?"

Callis replied that he had.

"I learned a few days later that the ordinances had been presented and had been turned down. I called Papa again and he said he knew nothing about them being prepared."

Douglas passed out copies of the bill he prepared and asked the other aldermen to look it over "so we can talk about it later."

Before the two earlier ordinances were voted down, Mayor Paul Schuler told the council, "I think this kind of action can only be detrimental. It would give all control over ordinances to the ordinance committee."

Douglas said last week, "This no power play. I think the aldermen should be aware of what is in the ordinances upon which we are required to vote. I am open to suggestions as to what should be in this ordinance."

Free swimming, full length feature movies and special excursions are just a few of the activities planned for children taking part in the summer recreation program, sponsored by the Granite City Park District.

The seven-week program starts today, June 11, at six playground centers in Granite City.

The program is free to residents of the park district and is open to children in the second through sixth grades who will attend the school or center nearest their homes.

Playgrounds this summer will be located at: Logan School, the Park District Community Center in Lincoln Place, Nameoki School, Niedringhaus School, Webster School and Wilson School.

Nancy Polson, program director, said the hours at each center will be from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 p.m. until 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Games, arts and crafts, picnics and special contests and trips, probably on the Admiral or to the St. Louis Zoo, are being planned.

Each youthful participant is required to have park district insurance, which costs $3 and covers all park-sponsored activities for 12 months.

Children interested in joining the program should report to the playground center nearest their home Monday.

The Rev. Thomas R. Fitzgerald, S.J., who will assume the responsibilities of president of St. Louis University June 15, will make his first university appearance June 16 during the 25-year reunion for the class of 1954, to be held at Busch Memorial Center, beginning with registration at noon and concluding with a dance at 8 p.m.

Father Fitzgerald will speak on the goals of the university at the reunion dinner at 7 p.m. Chancellor Paul C. Reinert, S.J., who was president of the university in 1954, will address a luncheon gathering at 1 p.m. Tours of the schools, new buildings and Cupples House will be led by the deans in the afternoon.

St. Louis University's Board of Trustees named Fitzgerald president on July 29, 1978 (effective June 15, 1979). Currently president of Fairfield University, he brings with him 20 years of university administrative experience. The Rev. Edward J. Drummond, S.J., is the acting president of St. Louis U.

SUBURBAN YOUTH WEEKEND RETREAT

Suburban Baptist Church, 2500 St. Clair Ave., will hold a youth weekend retreat June 22, 23 and 24.

Crackdown on mobile home taxes possible

Owners of mobile homes who have not paid their mobile home "privilege" taxes in recent years may soon be receiving a letter from the county, if Madison County Treasurer Michael S. "Mick" Henkhaus has his way.

Henkhaus said this week he is using a part-time law student this summer to study what options the treasurer has in collecting delinquent taxes from the mobile home tax enacted by the state in 1973.

So-called "built-in" guarantees that the taxes will be paid have not worked, in many cases, the treasurer said. One is that when the taxes are not paid, a lien is placed against the mobile home. However, since the sales are not recorded, many are sold without the buyer being made aware of the lien.

There also is a provision that mobile home transporters must obtain a permit from the treasurer's office before moving a unit more than a mile and the taxes must be paid before that permit is issued.

However, not all transporters obtain a permit, and the provision does not apply to mobile homes which are not moved.

Nameoki Township has the highest amount outstanding in mobile home privilege taxes, with $111,651 in delinquent taxes. Chouteau township mobile home residents owe $48,543, fourth behind Wood River and Edwardsville townships, and Granite City Township is fifth with $32,559 outstanding.

Venice Township has the smallest amount overdue with $4,129 in delinquent mobile home taxes.

Henkhaus also said he is studying to determine if tax reductions granted many mobile home owners through certificates of error were legal. He contends research done, thus far, indicates mobile home owners must file an affidavit with the treasurer's office if a tax bill is disputed.

Since mobile homes are not among properties for which certificate of error reductions can be granted, Henkhaus contended, those reductions should be found invalid and a way should be found to recover the taxes lost to the county through this practice.

Mobile home privilege taxes are determined by the age of the home and the outside square footage of floor space. The tax starts at 15 cents per square foot for new homes and declines to 7.5 cents in the 15th and subsequent years.

Some stationery won't meet July 15 standards

By ARTHUR J. LAURENCE
Officer in charge

Granite City Post Office. In shopping for stationery, there is one "bargain" families want to avoid. It is undersized envelopes and cards.

If such items cannot be mailed prior to July 15, they are a poor bargain at almost any price.

Reputable retailers aware of the upcoming change in Postal Service regulations are either not selling undersized mailing pieces or they are warning shoppers that their usefulness will soon expire.

The manufacturers and distributors of stationery supplies have long known about the new size standards.

Three years ago, the Postal Service announced plans to prohibit the mailing of envelopes and cards that are less than 3 1/2 inches high or 5 inches long. Also banned are flimsy cards made from very lightweight paper.

After July 15, they must have a thickness of seven-thousandths of an inch, which is just a little thinner than the 10-cent postal card sold in our post office. Industry has been given lots of time to exhaust obsolete stocks and come up with designs that will meet the new specifications.

The new minimum requirement will affect two types of mail commonly used by the average family.

One is the so-called "social" envelope and card, often enclosed with invitations to weddings and parties. Frequently, they are 3 or 3 1/2 inches high.

The other is the photo postcard, which is often less than 5 inches long.

Where feasible, use up such undersized envelopes and cards before July 15.

After this date, postal employees will be returning such non-mailable items to the sender, noting that the piece doesn't meet the new standards.

Inevitably, when this occurs the affected postal customer will be annoyed. He or she probably will feel that this is just one more example of "mindless" regulation.

If, however, this same customer visited a mail processing center, he could understand why the Postal Service will be prohibiting tiny mailing pieces.

Undersized envelopes and cards become trapped behind a normal sized piece of mail.

They lodge under the flap of regular pieces.

Flimsy cards crumple, jamming machinery. As a result, undersized pieces not only delay the handling of all mail, but they can also damage other letters when the machinery fails.

There are other aspects to the Postal Service new size standards. After July 15, we will be charging 7 cents more for oversized (more than 6 1/2 inches high or 11 1/2 long) pieces of first-class mail that weigh one ounce or less and single-piece third-class that weigh two ounces or less.

However, when a postal customer uses a large envelope, putting several ounces of material in it, there will be no surcharge because of size. The extra charge applies only to first-class weighing one ounce or less and single-piece third-class weighing two ounces or less.

These are the highlights on the size standards that become effective July 15.

For more detailed information, ask the window clerk at any post office for Publication 84, the leaflet that answers questions on letter-mail size standards.

Bible school at Mt. Zion

An evening Bible School for children ages 2 to 16 is being offered by Mt. Zion General Baptist Church from June 11 through June 15.

Sessions will be nightly from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. and will follow the theme, "Jesus, I'm His—He's Mine." Contests, prizes, crafts and refreshments also will be offered.

Additional information on enrolling in the class may be obtained by calling 877-3629.

Nutrition aides meet

The annual state conference for program assistants in the Expanded Food and Nutrition Program (EFNEP) was held last week at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign.

Nutrition program assistants attending from Madison County were: Verna McClelland, North Venice; Lola Barlyske, East Madison; Alberta Buie, Venice; and Phyllis McGinness, Granite City.

EFNEP, a special program of the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service, began in 1969 as part of a national effort to bring food and nutrition information to families with limited incomes.

Program assistants are employed and trained by the university to share nutrition information with homemakers in their own neighborhood and to help them develop skills for meeting nutritional needs of family members.

Work is done with homemakers on a one-to-one or small group basis within the home setting. Keynote speaker for the two-day conference was Dr. Herma Williams, professor and chairman of the Home Economic Department at Morgan State University in Baltimore.

Dr. Williams, who spoke on the conference theme, "The Joy of Teaching," challenged program assistants to evaluate personal qualities and understand self as a prerequisite to bringing about change in nutrition and food related behavior of clientele families.

In-service opportunities included university tours and classes on nutrition, credit rights, cooking for energy conservation, time management, and teaching techniques to use in home-based learning.

In 20 Illinois counties, more than 150 EFNEP program assistants are helping more than 23,000 people in 6,403 families.

Applicants sought for health aids

Chouteau Township residents needing dentures, eyeglasses, hearing aids, wheelchairs and other health-related equipment are being urged by Supervisor Walter "Dick" Sparks to check if they qualify for assistance from the township's medical assistance program.

Families with incomes at or below the program's guidelines may qualify for full or partial funding for health-related items or equipment. If there are sufficient funds, some applications for dental work and limited medical care may be approved, according to Sparks.

Maximum annual family incomes to qualify for the program are: one person, $8,000; two persons, $7,500; three, $8,500; four, $9,500 and five, $10,500, increasing by $1,000 for each family member over five.

The township has earmarked all remaining funds from the anti-recession fiscal assistance (Title II) program to aid township residents needing health equipment, Sparks explained.

Applications are available at the township building, behind the Midwest Motel, weekdays from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m.

Verification of income and a physician's or specialist's prescription or request for equipment will be required before funds are released.

Applications will be processed on a first-come, first-served basis and the funds are limited, so Chouteau Township residents are urged to apply as soon as possible, Sparks concluded.

Inquiries may be made by calling the office at 931-0360.

DRIVER CHARGED

Timothy Brodeur, 18, of 2821 Birch Ave. is to appear in court at 9 a.m. on July 6, to answer a charge of illegal transportation of alcohol. He was stopped by police at 2:07 a.m. June 3 near Highway 202 for traveling south on Nameoki Road at a high rate of speed. Police allegedly found three cans of beer in the car.

Summer schedule

The summer schedule of services for the First United Presbyterian Church, 22nd Street and Delmar Avenue, will begin on Sunday, June 17, according to Pastor David Bruce Maxton.

Church school will begin at 8:45 a.m. and the worship service will begin at 10 a.m. The new schedule will be effective through Sunday, Sept. 2.

A WORD TO THE ENERGY-WISE

Clean filters keep your air conditioner efficient.

A clogged filter causes your air conditioner to work overtime. It uses energy needlessly and deprives you of the comfort an air conditioner is designed to give.

For a room air conditioner or central unit, the advice from experts is:

Change filters once a month.

Suggestion: when you change a filter, write the date of change on its side. Then you can tell at a glance if the filter is due for a change.

Clean the grill on your outdoor unit. Dust and leaves clog the grill on the outdoor unit of a central system. Result: the unit runs constantly and still doesn't cool the house. Keep the grill clean and be sure shrubbery doesn't impede air circulation to the unit.

Notice of Public Hearing
Re: Garage and Maintenance Facility Construction Program.

I. Notice is hereby given that public hearings will be held by Bi-State Development Agency for the purpose of considering a program for which Federal capital assistance pursuant to Section 5 of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended, is being sought. Due to the importance of this program to Bi-State's entire service area, three hearings will be held to insure that all interested residents have adequate opportunities to learn of and comment on this important program. Each of the public hearings is scheduled to begin at 7:00 p.m. on July 19, 1979, the first hearing will be held at St. Louis University's Tegeler Hall-Carlo Auditorium, 3550 Lindell, St. Louis, Missouri. The second hearing, which is scheduled to take place on July 1, 1979, will be held in the County Council Chambers, first (1st) floor of St. Louis County Government Center's Administration Building located at 41 South Central, Clayton, Missouri. East St. Louis Senior High School's Auditorium located at 4901 State Street in East St. Louis, Illinois is scheduled for July 12, 1979, and is the site of the third public hearing regarding this program. The Garage and Maintenance Facility Construction Program is generally described as follows:

A. Description of Program (1) As presently planned, this garage program will require four phases requiring approximately ten years (FY 1979 through FY 1988) to complete.

Phase I which is scheduled to begin in FY 1979 and continue through FY 1982 calls for the construction of a new:

Main Shop estimated to cost $18,668,000; East St. Louis Garage estimated to cost $12,820,000; South County Garage estimated to cost $12,835,000.

Phase II which is scheduled to begin in FY 1979 and continue through FY 1984 consists of a new:

North County Garage estimated to cost $14,417,000 and the reconstruction of DeBaliviere Garage estimated to cost $16,414,000.

Phase III is scheduled to begin in FY 1983 and continue through FY 1986. This phase calls for the reconstruction of Bi-State's:

North Broadway Garage estimated to cost $13,971,000 and South Broadway Garage estimated to cost $12,704,000.

Phase IV of the program will then begin in FY 1986 and continue through FY 1988. Bi-State is to construct a new garage in:

Missouri estimated to cost $16,529,000 and in Illinois estimated to cost $19,098,000.

(2) Bi-State's service area includes St. Louis City, St. Louis County and Jefferson County in Missouri. The Illinois counties of Madison, St. Clair, and Monroe are also served by Bi-State's transit services.

(3) The estimated net project cost is $156,684,720. Bi-State is requesting $125,347,776 from the Urban Mass Transportation Administration while the remaining $31,336,944 will be provided by local funding sources.

Local financial assistance for this program will be provided from monies collected through the Missouri half cent transportation sales tax and by funds contributed through the Illinois department of Transportation's Capital Assistance Program.

B. Relocation No persons, families, or businesses will be displaced by this program.

C. Environment This program will not have a significant environmental impact upon the urban service area.

D. Comprehensive Planning This program is in conformance with comprehensive land use and transportation planning in the St. Louis area and is consistent with the adopted programming of projects in the Transportation Improvement Program.

E. Elderly and Handicapped The design of the program contained herein will take into consideration the special needs of the elderly and handicapped. Accessibility of these facilities by all St. Louis area residents will be a primary design objective.

F. Charter Bus Operations Bi-State Development Agency does not engage in any charter services outside of the St. Louis, Missouri-Illinois Metropolitan District (inclusive of Alton, Illinois).

G. School Bus Service Bi-State Development Agency does not engage in any school bus operations exclusively for the transportation of students or school personnel.

II. At the hearings, Bi-State Development Agency will afford an opportunity for interested persons or agencies to be heard with respect to the social, environmental, and economic aspects of the program. Interested persons may submit orally or in writing, evidence and recommendations with respect to said program.

III. Should the Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA) prepare a formal statement of the environmental impact of this program, the availability of such statement from UMTA will be made known by application in the same manner as publication of the notice of public hearing.

IV. A copy of the application and the Transportation Improvement Program for the area is currently available for public inspection at Bi-State Development Agency, 3869 Park Avenue, St. Louis, Missouri 63110, between 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Competitive bids best method for city trash contract

It is not necessary to praise or find fault with the garbage and trash collection service in Granite City to have a negative opinion on any departure from competitive bidding.

A random sampling convinces us that most residents give high marks to Milam East for the reliability and comprehensive nature of its collection service. The city feels it is having to pay only a reasonable amount. Nevertheless, it would seem hard to justify extending a contract involving hundreds of thousands of dollars, without allowing competition.

A five percent inflation-related increase in proposed, and the contractor also wants to begin charging extra for disposing of waste. Judging from the city's primary-secondary treatment plant. Whatever the merits of such proposals, they could best be tested in the marketplace, through competition on price and quality of service.

Polish Group bidders submit a lower bid than Milam East but would not agree to meet the service standards that have been maintained during the 1970s, the City Council can take this into account and award the work on the basis of "best bid meeting specifications."

The real decadence is Reds' suppression of rights

Wall Street Journal — Pope John Paul II has fulfilled all the worst fears of Poland's Communist leaders and sent tremors into the Kremlin as well. It cannot be at all comforting to these leaders, who have done what they could for years to discourage and even suppress religious expression, to see vast enthusiastic crowds of Poles turning out to welcome the pope.

The religious passion of the Poles almost surely represents a passion for greater freedom as well.

The pope has not flinched from the risks of awakening these passions. Neither has he done it recklessly. It is a mark of his character that he has simply said what he had to say, that religious liberty is a fundamental human right and the state has no moral basis for restricting it.

This bold and forthright declaration, made in the heartland of a Communist state, carries a message for the West as well.

It is a reminder to all those Western politicians who profess to believe in human rights that there are precious few such rights tolerated in the Marxist-Leninist dogma. The state arrogates power to itself and gives back very little to the individual.

This is a reminder that the fundamental conflict between the East and the West is a moral conflict, a struggle over what is the proper relationship between state and man. Economic freedom, destroyed by a system that places production in the hands of the state, is but one issue in that struggle.

There has been a tendency among some Western intellectuals and politicians in recent years to define the conflict in the terms that the Marxists themselves prefer. They prefer to see the Marxist state as a benevolent force that conquers human greed, decrees just and equitable distribution of the fruits of production, and makes its own demands for moral behavior.

The poor and meek are far more likely to inherit the earth in their system, they declare, than in the open, capitalistic society of the West.

It is not necessary to say that Marxism has no moral base to say that the real test of a moral order is how willingly it is embraced. Poles did not willingly embrace Soviet Marxism. It was thrust on them in war and it is preserved by Soviet tanks and troops on Polish soil.

As the reception given Pope John Paul II shows, the moral order of the Roman church is embraced in Poland. It is clung to tightly despite the efforts of the state to weaken it or destroy it as a competitive force.

This kind of struggle is an ancient one in Europe. The Roman church has both aligned itself with and struggled against secular powers through its long history.

Polish Communists prefer to say today that Poland practices church and state separation, just as it is practiced in most countries of the West. They know, of course, that it is by no means a benign separation. It is only a truce made necessary by their inability to conquer the church.

That inability, as the visit by the pope makes clear, stems from the failure of the state to truly capture the allegiance of the Polish people.

There are no spontaneous assemblies of 500,000 Poles to pay honor to Edward Gierek. There are no Silesian miners clamoring to see Communist officials, even though communism supposedly represents the interests of the working man above all else.

Stalin wanted to know how many divisions the pope commanded, a pointed and cynical assertion of secular power. Mao said that power flows from the barrel of a gun. Earlier cynics have insisted that might makes right, that history books are written by the victors, etc.

But the vehemence of these statements betrays the uneasiness of political leaders who can command support only through naked force, who do not have a popular mandate. Leaders who command no divisions but who can awaken the human spirit and stir genuine passions are always threatened by their regimes.

It is good for the people of the West to know more about moral authority at a time when the West is constantly accused of decadence by the Marxists.

Free institutions do not always succeed in suppressing immorality, but they can only survive by representing superior human values and aspirations.

Authoritarian institutions are unaccustomed to such discipline. That is why they always tremble when the human spirit expresses itself as it has in Poland these last few days.

Rigid amendments affect every citizen's pocketbook

Another issue critical to port development has been raised by the Rice Institute study findings. The study, commissioned by the Regional Commerce and Growth Association, analyzed the impact that new quality standards will have on this metropolitan area.

The independent study determined that compliance with the revised Clean Air Act Amendments of 1977 "could adversely affect employment, population growth, and development. Pollution control technology, with its high cost, would burden present industries, and would limit industrial expansion."

The report further stated that, "Households would be affected directly by certain air quality measures and indirectly as costs of controlling industrial pollution are passed on to consumers in the form of higher prices for manufactured products and utilities."

After discussion of the impact on St. Louis economic development, the Advisory Council, Port of Metropolitan St. Louis, has passed a resolution requesting that the Missouri and Illinois Congressional delegation support legislation which would delay for one year sanctions under the 1977 amendments. This action was suggested in order for the states of Illinois and Missouri to have sufficient time to comply with the Clean Air Act. In another action, the Advisory Council has passed a resolution requesting that the states of Missouri and Illinois certify, consistent with normal procedures for protection of the water resources, that proposed fill materials will not violate water quality standards. The certification is a requisite to beginning construction of new Lock and Dam 26.

The Advisory Council supports the coordinated efforts of the seven separate port districts which make up the Port of Metropolitan St. Louis. Now the leading inland port in the country, it is seen as a major catalyst to area economic growth and development.

A month-long controversy over the question of granting an automatic salary increase to an employee who had been on the payroll only three months was resolved by the Granite City Council last week when it reversed an earlier decision and approved the increase.

The employee, however, will receive an increase of 8.5 percent rather than the 8.5 percent raise granted earlier this year because a move to reconsider an earlier decision rejecting the individual increase failed to pass during last week's meeting.

The increase of $1,200 per year over her existing salary of $15,000 per year will go to Mrs. Paula Case who was hired in mid-March as an air pollution engineer by the Granite City Air Pollution Control Board.

The matter of a raise for Mrs. Case came when her name was included on a list of city employees who were scheduled to receive 8.5 percent salary raises at the beginning of the city's fiscal year May 1.

Several aldermen objected strongly that the policy has been to grant automatic raises under the city's contract with its employees only after the employee has worked for one year. Mrs. Case, at that time, had been on the payroll only two months.

In objections spearheaded by Alderman Sam Whitmer of the Second Ward, a council majority asked that Mrs. Case's name be stricken from the list. In a meeting two weeks ago, the council turned down a motion that Mrs. Case be granted the 8.5 percent raise.

The issue was revived in last week's council session when R. William Reddy, chairman of the Granite City Air Pollution Control Board, asked the aldermen to reconsider their earlier action rejecting the pay boost for Mrs. Case, noting that members of the air board were unaware of the city's policy requiring one year of service before automatic raises are made under the contract with city employees. "Had we been aware of the custom of not awarding salary adjustments until after a year, we would have recommended a starting salary of $16,000," Rotter said.

"Without the increase, Mrs. Case will be making only $999 per year more annually than the next highest-paid employee in the department," Rotter added. "The added responsibilities of being the head of the department should merit a larger salary differential than this."

After Rotter's letter was read to the aldermen, Whitmer said that under the circumstances he was willing to change his stand on the issue.

He made a motion that the council reconsider its action of an earlier meeting in which a motion for the 8.5 raise was rejected.

On a roll-call vote, that motion was rejected by a 7 to Plan, zoning meetings set June 13, 14

Two requests for commercial zoning at 3724 Nameoki Road and at 2402 to 2408 Madison Ave., and one annexation petition are on the agenda of the Granite City Plan Commission which is scheduled to meet at 1:15 p.m. Thursday, June 14, in the city council chambers in city hall.

The Granite City Board of Appeals also will meet next week with six requests for variances to be considered. The appeals board will meet at 1 p.m. Friday, June 15, in the city offices at 2301 Adams St.

A request for commercial zoning has been submitted to the Plan Commission by Maurice Lambert for C-1 zoning to construct a car wash at 3724 Nameoki Road. The property now is zoned R-1 for single-family residential use.

Also seeking C-1 zoning for 2402 to 2408 Madison Ave., is William Seebold, who now operates a boat sales business there under a non-conforming use classification.

The Plan Commission also is to consider an annexation request from Gilbert Walmesley, 2416 Pine Street, principal at Granite City High School North. The Board of Appeals Wednesday will consider six requests, all for the construction of structures near lot lower leg and chin. Requests are by: Troy Smith, 2239 Illinois Ave., to construct a garage on one property line; and Billy M. Childress, 2202 Woodlawn Ave., for a garage two feet from one property line.

Also, the Falkenheim family, 2605 Center St., to construct a garage on one property line; George Donohue, 2309 Terminal Ave., to build a garage three feet from one property line; and Rector Bohn, 107 Wilson Park Lane, to construct a garage four feet from the property line.

Thefts near tavern

Granite City police are attempting to determine if there was any connection between the damaging and ransacking of four vehicles near Jacobsmeier's tavern and the burglary of a nearby house Thursday night and early Friday.

Between 9:30 p.m. and 11:10 p.m. Thursday, the home of Greg Voss, 2205 25th St., was broken into and the bedrooms were ransacked. A jewelry box and jewelry and about $25 in cash and coins were stolen.

Entry was gained by forcing a wooden cover over a window which had been broken in a previous burglary at the house. Voss said his home has been burglarized four times recently.

At 1:50 a.m. Friday, police were told two pickup trucks and one auto on the parking lot of Jacobsmeier's, Edwards and August streets, had been broken into and ransacked, but none of the owners wanted police reports made.

A flashlight from the car was found in the street in the 2200 block of East 25th Street and in a nearby alley, officers found sunglasses, safety glasses and a car radio. A car radio, a car stereo and a car radio were also found in the alley.

At 2:10 a.m. Friday, Jim Hayes, operator of the ransacked car, discovered that the car, parked on August Street, had been broken into and looted. The right side window had been broken and the glove compartment was ransacked.

Taken were about 50 bullets, seven tape recordings and a plastic trash container.

Police questioned several nearby youths, but none were arrested, pending further investigation.

CAR IS DESTROYED The auto of Bill Portell, 2335 Pontoon Road, was destroyed by fire during the past week. A carburetor backfire is believed to have started the fire, which occurred in the 2100 block of Lynn Avenue, Granite City.

Firemen were on the scene 20 minutes. Damage was estimated at $1,500.

THREE RECENT BREAK-INS Barbara Shumate, 3404 Kirkpatrick Home, reported Thursday that her apartment had been burglarized for the third time in recent weeks.

GC Park District offers Muny trips

My Fair Lady, starring David Birney as Professor Higgins, will open the 1979 Muny Opera season, with the Granite City Park District planning the first of 10 weekly trips on Tuesday, June 26, for local residents wishing to see the popular musical.

A bus will leave the Wilson Park rink parking area at 7 p.m. each Tuesday for the outdoor theater in Forest Park, St. Louis, starting June 26 and continuing through Aug. 28.

In order to obtain a seat on the bus, tickets for the opera must be purchased in advance at the Wilson Park office.

Payment for tickets at the time a reservation is made at the park office. Tickets now are available at the office.

Cost of roundtrip bus transportation to the Muny Opera is $3.75, or a total of $11.50 per person, including theater ticket.

Twenty-five tickets must be sold each week or the trip to that specific show will be cancelled, Harold Brown, GC superintendent of parks and recreation, advised.

My Fair Lady, written and composed by Frederick Loewe and Alan Jay Lerner and based upon the play, Pygmalion, by George Bernard Shaw, revolves around the haughty Professor Henry Higgins, who makes a bet that he can groom a dingy Cockney flower girl in speech, manners and looks to the point where she can be passed off to London society as a genuine duchess.

Birney, who will portray Higgins, is known for his starring role in television's Bridget Loves Bernie and Serpico series, and appearances on TV's Police Story, Police Woman and Medical Center.

He was seen at the St. Louis Muny as King Arthur in the 1975 production of Camelot.

The other dates and shows scheduled on this season's park district excursion series, are:

July 3—A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum; July 10—Shenandoah, starring Ed Ames; July 17—Brigadoon with John McCook and Farley Granger; July 24—The Desert Song, starring Ann Blyth; July 31—Carousel with Robert Goulet as Billy Bigelow; Aug. 7—Tom Sawyer.

Aug. 14—Sugar, starring Robert Morse; Aug. 21—Ballroom; and Aug. 28—Bells Are Ringing featuring Florence Henderson and co-starring Dean Jones.

The final production will be seen this year only in St. Louis, Los Angeles and San Francisco and is being groomed for a later Broadway opening, it was learned.

Jazz returning to area

By MICHAEL FLEMING
One of them was a left-handed fiddler named Tabebu. Then there was the lady known simply as "Mammy Lou," who played her "heartfelt" piano music just after the Civil War.

And who could forget other old-timers like W. C. Handy, Dewey Jackson, Fats Marable, Lavelle "Bugs" Roberts, Chick Finney, Oliver Cobb, Cecil White or Scott Joplin?

Unfortunately for St. Louisans and the city's musical heritage, too many people have forgotten these area jazz greats and the American-born art form that stumbled to its feet in the depressive '30s, progressed through the "bee-bopping" '40s, struggled through the "rock and roll" '50s and '60s, and is fighting for rebirth in the late '70s.

"People forget that St. Louis was one of the most important early jazz centers, and too often they think only of New York, Chicago or New Orleans when they speak of jazz," says David Hines, a jazz trumpeter who recently finished a nine-month tour with Ray Charles.

"Since this is the city of the (jazz) innovators, if there is going to be a rebirth of jazz, it should be right here in St. Louis."

Perhaps Hines' "dream" of a local jazz renaissance has already started, as he and his St. Louis contemporaries are currently part of a series of 23 free outdoor concerts spotlighting the city's jazz heritage.

Created and directed by Nancy Clark and Mark O'Shaughnessy of the St. Louis Music Underground, the concert-in-the-park series began at Kiener Plaza May 12 and runs through Sept. 12.

Musical for these occasions is made possible by funds supplied by the recording companies of America through the Music Performers Trust Fund, co-sponsored by Michelob.

"The display of jazz in public is beneficial for two reasons," says Jeter Thompson, pianist and leader of Trio Tres Bien.

"It stimulates other musicians' interest in the jazz industry, and provides a showcase for local talent that otherwise might be missed."

"Also, I've done shows like this all over the country, but it's another thing to be back in your home town."

Thompson is not the only jazz aficionado to be "thrilled" by the jazz series.

"It's a shame that more people aren't supporting the only true American art form," says Michael Bled, trombonist for the St. Louis Jazz Repertory Company.

"But the series provides a chance for more people to be exposed to jazz, and through exposure many more people will be turned on to the art form."

Says trumpeter Randy Holmes, "There's not enough interest in jazz today as there should be, and it comes down to people being interested in promoting the music."

"Exposure is a problem, sure, but that can only be solved through financial support."

The leader of the Herb Drury Trio agrees with Holmes.

"Jazz musicians will always play the music wherever and whenever they can and that's great," says Drury. "But if there isn't someone to sponsor it, the great jazz tradition will just lie there and smolder as it has been doing for some time."

So why has jazz been "smoldering" since the Charlie Parker days of the early and late '50s?

"Jazz requires the listener to think, and the total experience requires audience involvement," says Bland. "And whereas disco is void of intellectual participation, jazz as an art form is communication. When people don't participate intellectually, it's like trying to communicate to a blank wall."

Herb Drury points to young musicians of the '60s and their infatuation with rock music as another reason for the jazz decline.

"Rock was a natural for the youth of the 1960s because they grew up with it. And they may have also been attracted by the theatrical aspect," says Drury.

"But now the musicians, who were teens then, realize rock's limitations. Duplicating album cuts shows musical talent, but those players have done enough rock music to realize that sound's limitations."

Another reason for the jazz decline may center around the "smoke-filled room" stigma assigned to the art form during the beatnik days of the early '60s.

"I don't think those bad rapers affect jazz as much as they used to," says Holmes.

"Fortunately, the stereotypes of our profession such as those associated with rock and classical music have left the scene."

Drury, whose trio appears at Boucvar's in La Chateau Village, agrees with Holmes. "Jazz started in rowdy houses and became popular during prohibition, so naturally it was associated with the 'shady crowd'."

"But recently, jazz has been brought up to a more intellectual level whereby people are starting to recognize that it's not just an emotional rhythmic thing, but an intricate intellectual art form."

"Jazz influences are the best around," says Bland, "because they don't come to get drunk or fight. They come to appreciate jazz — period."

What some in the industry view as another problem for jazz, difficulty in explaining all that the art form encompasses — from Dixieland and blues to modern "fusion" sounds of Miles Davis (from East St. Louis) and Herbie Hancock — isn't viewed as such by others.

"Jazz, in whatever form, is simply a personal expression of feeling by an individual performer or by individuals within a group," explains Drury. "Although there are certain styles or modes that we all tend to copy, each performer and performance is unique."

Jeter Thompson agrees that "no two performers are alike," and the unique thing about jazz is that it's the audience that stimulates soloists to "cut loose."

In contrast to other music forms, he adds, "the jazz soloist is always receptive to the moods of the audience and his own feelings regarding those moods."

Says David Hines, "Jazz is not the reduplication of soundtracks like so many concerts are today. The jazz bands swing more, and the music involves getting into an art experience or it's happening, not simply a reproduction of what was."

"Hines adds, 'When you speak of jazz you speak of an art that is specifically not done the same at each performance. For example, when I go to a jazz concert, it's like receiving a painting especially done for me.'"

One such portrait "painted" especially for St. Louis was W. C. Handy's "St. Louis Blues," inspired by the unhappy, poverty-stricken, but memorable days he spent in St. Louis.

Speaking of that most famous of the blues, in his book "Father of the Blues," Handy wrote: "I have tried to forget that first sojourn to St. Louis, but I wouldn't want to forget Targee Street as it was then."

"I don't think I'd want to forget the high-roller Stetson hats of the men or the diamonds the girls wore in their ears. Then there were those who sat for company in little plush parlors under gaslights."

"The prettiest women I've ever seen I saw while I was down and out in St. Louis. But mostly my trip was an excursion into the lower depths."

"Still, I have always felt that the misery of those days bore fruit in a song. I like to think that song reflects a life filled with hard times as well as good times."

And although Handy "hated to see that evening sun go down" in the river town known as "the city of the Gabriels," perhaps the sun is now rising here to mark the beginning of a new day for jazz music and the talented people who carry on its proud tradition.

What YOU should know about air conditioning

Some manufacturers of heating and cooling equipment have begun to use aluminum tubing in their heat pump and central air conditioning coils. Now aluminum is great for some things, like beverage cans, lawn chairs, etc. But coil tubing isn't one of them.

Lennox uses only dependable, proven copper tubing. Copper costs a little more, but the advantages are well worth it. Copper is easier to work with, less brittle, more flexible, easier to make tight joints with.

Lennox enjoys a high quality reputation unsurpassed in the heating and air conditioning industry. We didn't get it by skipping on materials.

It's just one more reason to see your independent Lennox dealer for all your heating and air conditioning needs. Call:
